2017 Ontario Migrant Farm Worker Health Forum

April 21 – 22, 2017 – Brock University, St. Catharines, On

A unique opportunity to come together, share best practices, and explore innovative ideas to improve the health of migrant farm workers

Nearly 40,000 migrant farmworkers (MFWs) come to Canada each year to work in the agriculture industry, with approximately 24 000 arriving to Ontario. The health of these workers is strongly influenced by their experience of migration, their living and work environments, and their access to health care and health and safety support. These workers face many access barriers, including language, isolation, intimidation, and disconnect from available services. Many service providers have not yet connected to these communities; those who have are challenged with the task of ensuring services reflect unique needs.

OHCOW's annual forum aims to bring together a wealth of experience from across the province. The 2016 event was lauded by attendees as highly informative, useful and innovative.

This year we are excited to be partnering with Brock University. We recognize that Niagara is the region to where the first migrant farm workers started to arrive under the Seasonal Agricultural Workers Program (SAWP) in 1966, and to where thousands continue to arrive every year. Niagara is also a region which has a long history of service providers, organizations and community groups working with and in support of migrant farm worker communities, and is therefore a well of insight, experience and best practices.

We are calling for abstract submissions for presentations and workshops, as well as for collaborative sessions.

Presentations and workshops: Present on service provision, projects and programs, best practices, research results, timely issues or insights. Approx. 30min-45min.

Collaborative Sessions: Organize and facilitate a dynamic session focused on collaboratively identifying challenges and developing and sharing practical solutions. These sessions are participant lead with your facilitation. Approx. 40min-1 hour. Allocated times may change during scheduling process.
