The G'minoomaadozimin "We are living well," Health & Safety initiative is an opportunity to utilize workplace health and safety as a catalyst for change. Nokiiwin Tribal Council is committed to helping member communities create their own culturally appropriate First Nations health and safety culture. The emphasis of this project is on awareness initiatives and the development of systems that will cultivate and nurture health & safety champions in the workplace, at home and in the community. Health and safety builds strong communities and supports economic development initiatives including entrepreneurship.

The G'minoomaadozimin Aboriginal Health & Safety Conference is an opportunity to learn about best practices, increase your health and safety knowledge and share your experiences and learn from others.
